Three Miramar residents honored at centenarian birthday party

By NAN P. EHRBRIGHT
Miramar Lodge Nursing Home in Pass Christian honored three residents Thursday afternoon with a centenarian birthday party.

The honorees were Mrs. Lily Spence of Pass Christian, born Nov. 12, 1882; Mrs. Martha Miles of Wiggins, born Dec. 4, 1882; and Mrs. Ida Fayard of Gulfport, born May 10, 1883.

The agenda for the celebration at Miramar included a greeting by Pass Christian Mayor Gordon Bishop.

Miramar Administrator Billy Reed and Rev. Calvin Jackson of St. Paul's Methodist Church also delivered birthday greetings to the three women.

Entertainment was provided by Yvonne Hall, who sang several songs, and Virgie Giani, who played the piano while refreshments were served.

Several relatives of the women also joined the gathering.

The centenarian party was planned by Jerry Brown, Miramar's director of activities.

Mrs. Spence is the widow of Dr. James Spence, a dentist who served as Pass Christian mayor for 20 years.

The mother of five children, Mrs. Spence has ten grandchildren, 17 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

She is the oldest member of Trinity Episcopal Church and St. Cecilia Guild. After living alone for many years prior to Hurricane Camille, Mrs. Spence moved to Miramar in January 1976.

Mrs. Miles, the widow of John Miles and mother of six, lived in a log house for many years.

Her husband raised vegetables and hogs, and Mrs. Miles cured her own meat.

Mrs. Miles has 21 grandchildren, 32 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

She has lived at Miramar since February 1970.

Mrs. Miles' favorite music, Brown says, is country-western.

Mrs. Fayard, born in Cedar Lake and the daughter of a Swiss immigrant, is the widow of Charles Fayard and mother of four.

Groceries out of New Orleans were delivered to the Fayards by barge on Parker Creek during the early years of their marriage.

Later, a Felchers Freight barge delivered the monthly grocery supply until community grocery stores opened to supplement food from the family garden.

During the 1917 flu epidemic Mrs. Fayard cared for three sick neighborhood families and two nuns who arrived to care for Catholic neighbors and came down with the flu themselves.

In 1926 the Fayards moved to New Orleans and Mrs. Fayard operated a rooming house.

Several years later the family moved to Gulfport.

When Mr. Fayard broke his leg in 1932, Mrs. Fayard worked for a year in a Gulfport mattress factory.

Mrs. Fayard has ten grandchildren, 36 great-grandchildren and 36 great-great-grandchildren.

News of the election setting came as a surprise to Hancock Circuit Court staff, who said it would be difficult to prepare for an election in such a short time.

Circuit Clerk John Rutherford was not advised of the election setting until

County to consider center for low-risk state prisoners

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

The Board of Supervisors agreed Tuesday to explore the possibility of establishing a community work center in Hancock County for low-risk inmates from the state penitentiary at Parchman.

The affirmative vote came after a brief presentation by Michael L. Chambers, southern regional coordinator of community services for the Mississippi Department of Corrections, Biloxi.

Chambers said 12 such centers were authorized by the State Legislature last year.

There are five facilities in the state now, he said, and two more are being constructed in Gulfport and Pascagoula.

According to Chambers, the 75-man centers can contribute a half-million dollars per year through services purchased in the communities where they are located.

Residents of the centers are available to do regular or emergency work for county or city governments.

Participating counties are asked to provide five acres of land at $1 per year for 25 years, Chambers said.

Sites proposed by the counties must be approved by the state, and utilities must be available to the sites.

The Department of Corrections would construct the facility and hire a staff of 15 with an annual payroll of some $200,000.

Chambers said he could not guarantee that the personnel hired would be local people.

That decision would be made by the Department of Corrections, he said.

Residents would get first priority, Gulf Coast residents second.

Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson said the program would have very little impact on current over-crowded conditions at the county jail.

"But I do recommend it," he said. "It would be a big asset to the county."

You'd have free labor—and I don't think you could beat that."

The resolution adopted by the supervisors Tuesday expresses an interest in the program and invites the Mississippi Department of Corrections to present a detailed proposal.

Company fears air, water pollution by Borg-Warner

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The attorney for an industry to be located next to Borg-Warner Chemicals' Baymar Plant at Port Bienvenue Industrial Park fears water and air pollution will result from hazardous waste storage at the chemical plant site.

Aaron Adams, a Waveland attorney representing Curtis North America and Mississippi Pumping Service of Hancock County, expressed those fears at a Tuesday night hearing conducted by the State Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Pollution Control Solid Waste Division at American Legion Post No. 77 hall in Waveland.

About 30 people attended the hearing prompted by a request by Curtis North America.

The attorney conveyed objections and asked questions primarily regarding portions of four of five conditions the BPC has proposed for issuance of Borg-Warner's permit to store hazardous wastes prior to disposal in Louisiana.

John Herman, a BPC chemical engineer, chaired the hearing and promised all questions raised would be

Family seeking temporary home after house fire

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A Bay St. Louis family, temporarily residing at a Waveland motel, is looking for a place to live pending completion of repairs to their home which was damaged in a Christmas Eve fire.

Chief Andrew Lizana of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department said Tuesday that a smoldering cigarette butt apparently ignited some paper on the floor underneath a bed at the Robert C. Williams Jr. residence at 606 Union St.

Lizana reported the blaze in the master bedroom destroyed the bed, its box spring and a portion of a rug and caused smoke damage throughout the home.

Williams; his wife Mary; and their daughter Twanna, 7, all escaped injury in the fire which was reported to the department at 1:15 p.m., Lizana said.

Williams reported Wednesday that he was in the kitchen when his daughter indicated there was a fire in the bedroom.

He commended the fire department for its quick response to his call for help and Bay Police Department for assistance in moving the family's Christmas tree and presents to Waveland Resort Inn where the Williamses are now residing.

Lizana said the fire was extinguished in a matter of minutes.

Williams also reported that his house

By NAN PATTON EHRLIGHT

answered later in written form by the bureau.

Adams said spills in Borg-Warner's drum storage area, containing metal 55-gallon drums of waste chemicals resulting from cleaning of plant equipment, could be dumped "undetected" into Mullato Bayou through a "collection sump" which empties into the plant's water discharge system in the event of a substantial spill.

He charged that the dumping of spilled chemicals through the plant's discharge system would violate Borg-Warner's permit which is for "cooling water only."

The attorney said the state requires that Borg-Warner's discharge be monitored for pH, temperature and flow rate and does not test for amounts of styrene, acrylonitrile and methylethylketone utilized in the plant's manufacturing process.

He also objected to the maximum of 144 drums allowed to be stacked two high in the storage area which could result in a spill.

Adams questioned the containment area's ability to withstand storm water surges accompanying strong hurricanes.

The attorney feared the venting of drums containing acrylonitrile, "a potential carcinogen" (possibly causing cancer), could affect workers nearby at the industrial park.

He noted the BPC is allowing Borg-Warner to partially open the stored drums of hazardous wastes for safety reasons, but this releases fumes from these toxic chemicals into the atmosphere.

Adams also questioned if previously reported damaged drums utilized in the containment area have been removed.

James DeBlanc, Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission executive director, reported that "in the last 120 days" a water quality study at the industrial park showed no chemicals in surrounding bayous and channels.

Thomas Stinson commented that he utilized methylethylketone when he worked in the shipbuilding business and stated, "You can stick your hand in a bucket of that stuff and it will evaporate off your hand."

W. Wilson Wehre, a former commission executive director, complimented Borg-Warner as a good local industry.

He said the plant is located on property which is 17 to 18 feet above sea level and the company elevated its buildings an additional three feet.

He charged that Adams comments were in retaliation to Borg-Warner's objection filed with the commission regarding Curtis North America locating a drilling fluids recycling plant next to the plastics manufacturer.

Adams later denied that accusation and stated his client was objecting to "toxic carcinogenic materials" being stored in the county.

Herman added after the hearing officially closed that the BPC would receive written comments regarding the permit until Friday and Borg-Warner invites concerned citizens to tour its plant.

insurance agent, Tommy Brooks of Nationwide Insurance in Waveland, assisted the family in temporarily relocating to the motel that evening.

He added that some of his daughter's presents hidden under the bed were destroyed in the fire.

When asked if the family needed any assistance, Williams initially said no, but later said he is experiencing difficulty in finding his family a temporary place to stay until their home can be repaired.

He said the motel room rates are high compared to monthly apartment rental fees and they need a home for about one month while the work is underway.

VEHICLE FIRE

Just after the Williams fire, the department received a call that a station wagon was on fire at a Ruella Street residence, Lizana said.

Firefighters responded to the mobile home residence of Willie Mae Taylor at a trailer park on the street, the chief reported.

He said firefighters found flames leaping from the hood, front tires and dashboard of the vehicle parked in front of the mobile home.

The fire, reported at 2:15 p.m., took three to five minutes to extinguish, Lizana said.

The chief said the fire burned the engine compartment and dash of the station wagon and would have ignited the nearby mobile home if the blaze had not been extinguished.

Cause of the vehicle fire is undetermined, Lizana added.

Responding to both fires were Lizana, Capt. Mike Williams, Lieutenants Alphonse Shephard and Ann Feneguy, and firefighters Marty Blackstock and Terry McCrory.

Power company customers to see $2 average refund

Mississippi Power Company will refund $1.5 million to customers as part of the utility's $55 million settlement with Peabody Coal Company in 1981, Alan Barton, president of the Gulfport-based firm, said.

"The refund, based on kilowatt-hour usage from December 1982 to November 1983, is being credited to customers in their January 1984 bills," Barton said.

"For most residential customers this will average around $2, some more or less depending on how many kilowatt-hour each customer purchased. Eligible recipients, as approved by the state Public Service Commission, are those customers of record from Nov. 1983."

The refund results from settlement of a breach of contract lawsuit filed in 1975 by Mississippi Power Company in behalf of its customers against Peabody Coal Company for failure to deliver coal under conditions of a long-term contract.

"The failure to deliver the coal forced us to purchase more expensive coal on the spot market and ultimately to pass the increased cost on to customers," Barton said.

"In an effort to protect our customers against unnecessary fuel increases, Mississippi Power, on its own initiative, decided to take legal action to recover the added fuel costs and to return this money to our customers."

NOTICE SICK PEOPLE

Have you ever noticed how sick people are so easily irritated, upset, and often nervous and tense. It doesn't have to be sick nerves or emotional problems alone that create these reactions, and in many cases it isn't (that's all). You see, when the body is sick or in pain, one can be overcome with a feeling of the unknown and fear, bringing about extreme nervousness and anxiety. However, for every sickness there must be an internal cause. A Chiropractic examination and spinal scans, if necessary, are geared to be very thorough so as to not miss the basic underlying cause of either the sickness or the nervousness. That's why Chiropractic care has proven to be so effective in caring for the emotionally upset, nervous and mental problems. If nerve interference is creating sickness in the body, we have found it also to be responsible for creating nervousness. Chiropractic is the safest, most conservative care that should be applied in the majority of these problems first.

Havens moves to stall residential rate hike

Chairman Lynn Havens reports that in considering South Central Bell's request for emergency relief of $31.7 million necessitated by the Justice Department's ordered breakup of American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the Mississippi Public Service Commission has sought to prevent any imposition of higher rates, even on an interim basis, from being placed on residential consumers.

The commission's staff has recommended a proposal for emergency relief on an interim basis until the commission has had time to thoroughly analyze the request and hold hearings as provided under the new statute which will not cost residential ratepayers anything in the interim period.

The commission staff's specific recommendations are as follows:

—$14.9 million would be recovered from Interexchange Carriers such as AT&T Communications, Inc., Mobile Communications, Inc. (MCI) or any other carrier providing interLATA telecommunications service.

—$7 million would be recovered from Access Charges to be levied on WATTS users.

—$9.5 million would be recovered from a flat rate monthly surcharge to business customers. This would result in an increase of approximately $8.30 per business customer per month, and $80 per line for Centrex users. (The company had asked for $13.9 million emergency relief from loss of customer premise equipment (CPE) but the Commission Staff has initially determined this loss to be only $9.5 million.)

In addition to granting interim relief to South Central Bell, Chairman Havens says that the staff's numbers indicate that AT&T Communications could reduce its Intrastate/interLATA Toll Rates by $5.0 million and still earn a 11.5 percent return on its investment. "I intend to order AT&T Communications to do just that," said Chairman Havens.

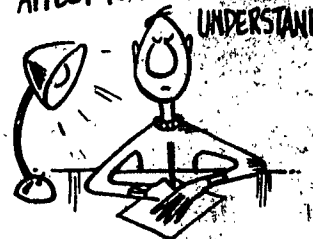

He went on to say that the residential customers will enjoy a reduction in their overall phone bills if they place interLATA calls. In other words, calls between the Gulf Coast and the rest of the state will cost approximately 23 percent less beginning Jan. 1, under the Commission's plan.

The Modified Final Judgment (MFJ) and Plan of Reorganization as approved by the U.S. District Court, divided Mississippi into two Local Access Transport Areas (LATA). The northern two-thirds of the state falls in one LATA and the southern one-third of the state in another.

Business customers represent the largest users of interLATA toll services, therefore, they will be able to offset a large portion, if not all, of the flat rate charge to be levied on them for CPE's loss of CPE.

In addition, Havens states the impact on business customers will be minimized because business telephone charges are tax deductible, and in the new competitive environment, businesses will be the primary beneficiaries of the new competition in the unregulated CPE business.

News from the Governor

Governor William Winter has proclaimed January as Eye Health Care Month in Mississippi in support of a nationwide effort by ophthalmologists (eye physicians and surgeons) to encourage Americans to take action to reduce the high incidence of unnecessary blindness.

According to William C. Mayfield, MD, president, Mississippi Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat Association, statistics provided by the National Society to Prevent Blindness point up the scope of the problem, and the opportunity to do something about it.

"Nearly 11.5 million persons in the U.S. - one in every 19 - suffer some degree of eye damage," Dr. Mayfield said, "and 47,000 Americans become blind each year."

"The National Society to Prevent Blindness estimates that 50 percent of all blindness can be prevented, and we seek the cooperation of all to reach that goal," he said.

The Mississippi Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat Association is urging the public to prevent eye injuries at work and play by wearing protective glasses. The association is also stressing public awareness of the need to seek early and accurate diagnosis and treatment by a medical eye specialist (ophthalmologist).

Senator Thad Cochran SPECIAL REPORT:

AGRICULTURE CREDIT
Senator Thad Cochran says the serious problems of agriculture credit should be the subject of a Presidential task force and he has introduced legislation calling for the establishment of just such a task force.

"Economic returns in agriculture have simply not kept pace with increasing demands for capital investments. It's time for a complete review of our nation's agricultural credit system of the magnitude it would receive through a task force appointed by the President," Cochran said.

Cochran said the legislation he introduced calls for the task force to identify and evaluate the current agricultural credit system as well as develop specific recommendations for policies and legislation to ensure the availability of adequate credit at reasonable costs.

The senator, who is chairman of the Subcommittee on Agriculture Production, Marketing, and Stabilization of Prices, said farmers who testified at recent hearings he conducted in Washington and Memphis repeatedly complained of increasing difficulty in obtaining necessary levels of credit to finance their operations.

"The combination of increasing capital requirements and volatile economic returns has proven disastrous for many farmers," Cochran said. "When a farmer loses the losses big, and it takes a long time to recover with profit margins as low as they are in agriculture."

As an indication of the severity of the situation Cochran said the agriculture industry lost $50 billion in 1970 to over $115 billion in 1980. He said the administration of President Carter has been slow to respond to the problem, and he said the task force would be set up to study the problem and report to the President.

Gil Carmichael continues efforts for new state constitution

Publisher/Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

I want to thank you and your staff for the extremely courteous way you treated me and the campaign for the office of lieutenant governor.

I have only praise for the media. Do please pass on to your staff and your readers my deep appreciation for their objectiveness and encouragement.

Enclosed is a copy of the survey on October 15, showing my percentage of votes against Brad Dye at a point just prior to the "disclosure" in the governor's race.

I think the figure is extremely accurate. The important items are the surveys on the Constitution issue itself.

It shows the Mississippi people will vote for a new state constitution if given a chance - almost two to one.

My campaign should have destroyed the myths of the 1890 constitution. Current events only reinforce the failure of the old constitution, its old state government, and the imbalance of power.

The recent ruling by the State Supreme Court further demonstrates the dilemma.

Even though legislators cannot now serve on the boards and commissions, it must be remembered that these are not boards and commissions created to enhance the executive branch of government but were created by the legislature to replace a normal executive division.

To take these boards and commissions and to place them automatically in the executive branch will not give us efficient government.

It could create something almost as bad (particularly if the governor is given succession) as we now have. A balanced government would not need or use hundreds of boards and commissions.

I firmly believe that we can pass a resolution calling for a new state constitution. It is critical that we study this opportunity for major reform and we work with the enlightened legislators (many just elected) as well as adding support to the legislators who know that change must come quickly, specifically Jim Simpson, who has an historical role to play in this major event.

Sincerely,
Gil Carmichael

COST OF CRIME

Just about the time the Mississippi Economic Council was reporting that crime is costing Mississippians - in dollar terms - at least $237 million per year, a law enforcement group was calling for weakening of state law enforcement training.

The Mississippi Sheriffs Association has recommended a reduction in the training required of law enforcement officers; the Mississippi Police Chiefs Association supports the present training requirements.

The MEC report on the cost of crime said almost 90,000 crimes are committed in Mississippi each year.

"It is almost impossible to determine with complete accuracy the total economic cost of crime in America, or in Mississippi," said MEC. "One reason is that only about half the crimes committed are reported."

But the council was able to determine that the cost of crime in Mississippi reaches at least $237 million per year.

The council also concluded that the law enforcement training act of 1981 was a significant step forward in the war against crime in Mississippi.

The act sets minimum education and training requirements for law enforcement officers and provides for the state to pay half the cost of the training.

It would be a mistake for Mississippi to weaken its stand against crime, or to, in any way, suggest that it is soft on crime.

Hancock board calls planning meet

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
Noting that "We are at the point where we need major renovations at all our schools," Hancock County School District Superintendent Terrell Randolph told trustees Tuesday evening he feels the priority for education at the next legislative session must be funding for renovating and building school classrooms.

The trustees concurred, and agreed to hold a special meeting in February to discuss facility needs in Hancock County schools.

The specific date for the special meeting will be set at the first February meeting of the board.

The trustees hope then to begin to develop a long-range plan to present to the state's Educational Finance Commission for approval.

Randolph noted that the possibility of school consolidation could have a major impact on classroom needs.

"But right now," he said, "we have a priority need for more classrooms at Gulfview Elementary and for renovation at all campuses."

Also Tuesday, the trustees approved emergency repair of boilers and broken water pipes at Charles B. Murphy Elementary School and Hancock North Central and emergency repair for the water pump at Hancock North Central.

Appliance Service Heating and Air Conditioning of Gulfport has done partial repair work on the boilers and pipes, Randolph said. Repair work has not been completed because parts must be ordered from California.

Insurance will cover repair costs for the work except for a $250 deductible at both schools, he said.

Problems with the water pump at Hancock North Central were discovered Tuesday morning when there was no water pressure at the school.

School was dismissed at noon Tuesday and Wednesday classes were cancelled.

Randolph noted that there apparently were no problems with the pump during the two-week Christmas holiday period, during which janitors worked at the school every day.

Cause of the problem and cost of repair cannot be determined until the pump is pulled, Randolph said, which will cost about $800 for labor.

The district will have to pay a $1,000 deductible on insurance coverage for the pump repair.

Braden Pump and Well Service Inc. of Gulfport is doing the pump repair, Randolph reported.

Also Tuesday, Randolph reported an increase in student population has created school bus overloads in the northern part of the county.

The buses are built for 66 passengers. This year, one has 90 students assigned to it and the other has 75.

Randolph assured several parents who attended the meeting to express their concern that he will try to work out a satisfactory solution later this week.

In other business the trustees:

—Took under advisement a bid from Schuffert Pontiac for five GMC chassis for school buses at $12,223 each;

—Accepted a $322 bid of Office Supply Company of Gulfport for an IBM correcting Selectric typewriter for School Food Services;

—Approved a leave of absence for bus driver Ann Franzen; —Approved use of the Charles B. Murphy gymnasium by Gulfport Boxing Club on Saturday, Jan. 14; —Approved attendance of Randolph, D.E. Hillman, Janet Haas and Lynel Ladner at a computer system seminar for schools sponsored by Data Processing Consultants in Meridian on Jan. 17;

—Approved attendance of Jeannette Handshoe and Kathryn Norton at an international conference on learning disabled in New Orleans Feb. 28-March 2;

—Approved attendance of Lois

Abrams at a workshop on microcomputers on Feb. 27;

—Approved employment of Beth Busbee as home bound teacher for a student recuperating from back surgery, at $100 per month;

—Approved payment of $81 from the superintendent's travel budget for expenses in connection with a trip to Lake Forest Plaza by severely-handicapped students;

—Accepted the resignation of Tommy Ladner as bus driver effective Jan. 3;

—Approved employment of Connie Boswell as bus driver for the remainder of the school year;

—Approved employment of Barbara Rappold as substitute teacher at Gulfview Elementary for the remainder of the school year;

—Approved employment of central office staff for 1984 as follows: James Pair, assistant superintendent; Sue Dean, superintendent's secretary; Lynel Ladner, bookkeeper; Janet Haas, computer operator and assistant bookkeeper; and Jeannette Handshoe, special education coordinator.

Randolph advised board members that the cafeteria at Charles B. Murphy Elementary was broken into in mid-December, with minor damage and minimum loss.

He also advised the board that roof repairs at Hancock North Central have not been completed and he will try to get the work finished during the spring holidays.

Billie Fay Lyons was elected chairman of the board Tuesday evening.

Monvel Cuevas was elected vice-chairman.

Joseph Gex is retained as board attorney and Fred Wagner is architect.

Hancock supervisors re-elect A.A. Kellar as board chairman

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors prepared for 1984 at its first meeting of the year Tuesday by reorganizing itself, appointing members of various advisory boards and rehiring all county employees.

With some reluctance, board president A.A. (Dolph) Kellar accepted the motion of Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner, seconded by Supervisor Bert Courree, that Kellar serve another year as president.

"I would like to devote more time to my beat," he said, "but I do not want to shirk responsibility."

"I certainly am in the hot seat," he said after the unanimous affirmative vote.

Supervisor James Travira was elected vice-chairman of the group.

Walter Gex III was reappointed as board attorney.

Other board appointments include John Genin, special county prosecutor and youth court prosecutor; Youth Court Clerk J.J. Drummond, youth court janitor; William Frisbie, county defender; Lawrence L. Seal, county engineer; Elsie Kenny, county purchase clerk; Chancery Clerk Michael Necaise as county clerk, county treasurer and auditor, and youth court clerk; Michael Ladner, veterans' service officer; Rhonda Patton, justice court clerk; and Marie Klein, deputy justice court clerk.

Alvin Ladner Sr. was appointed to Hancock County Park Commission to represent Beat 4 and fill the vacancy created by Willie Harmon's resignation.

Reappointed park commissioners were Mary Caillier, Beat 1; Delmer Wilcox, Beat 2; Hilda Borg, Beat 3; and Uless Bergeron, Beat 5.

Robert Baxter, originally appointed to Hancock General Hospital Board to represent Beat 1, was appointed to represent Beat 2 because redistricting moved him to that beat.

The following persons were appointed to the Port and Harbor Commission: Harry Baxter, Beat 1; Oliver Frierson, Beat 2; Ronnie Artigues, Beat 3; Jerry Seuzeneau, Beat 4; and Dave McDonald, Beat 5.

In addition, Youth Court Clerk Jeanette Drummond was awarded a contract to provide janitorial services to the youth court.

The board also approved all bonds for elected officials.

Wallace Bradley of the Hancock County Welfare Department told the supervisors that a distribution of U.S. Dept. of Agriculture cheese will be made Jan. 19 at a yet-to-be-designated site.

The last distribution was made at the fairgrounds, but because heaters there are not hooked up, Bradley will look at alternative locations.

The supervisors agreed to set aside Jan. 18 to provide county equipment to pick up the cheese from the Rice Pavilion in Gulfport.

In other business the supervisors:

—Accepted Omega Inc.'s $1,280 bid to repair Welfare office ceilings damaged by water;

—Accepted a Charlie Henderson Ford Inc. bid for 1984 pickup half-ton trucks for Beats 2, 3 and 4 at $8,994 each;

—Accepted John Knight's bid for 600 yards of clay gravel and fill and agreed to advertise for 400 yards or less of pea gravel and sand for McCloud Park;

—Accepted The Sea Coast Echo's bid for legal notices at $175 per publication;

—Accepted Security Savings, Hancock Bank and Peoples Federal Savings as depositories for county funds;

—Agreed to re-employ Lola Ladner to feed the prisoners at Hancock County Jail;

—Took under advisement a bid from Pest Control Services Inc. for $168 per month;

—Adopted, for the second year, a resolution endorsing the creation of a coastal independent streams district and urging passage of enabling legislation; and —Approved the claims docket.

'Strike while the market is hot,' agriculture marketing analyst advises

The best pricing opportunities for farmers will come during the first half of 1984, says Gary Ellis, market analyst for Illinois Ag Association.

"Strike while the market is hot," Ellis advises farmers for 1984.

The expected spring rally will be a good time to start selling 1984 and also 1985 bean crops, says the analyst.

If nearby futures prices are near $9, and cash offerings for the 1984 crop are close to $8, Ellis advises farmers to get 50 percent priced on new crop beans.

Soybeans could very likely trade above $9 (futures) during the first quarter of 1984, said Ellis in an interview with Soybean Update, American Soybean Association's weekly marketing newsletter.

The analyst then gives beans a "50-50 chance" of making new highs in the second quarter.

But by the third quarter of 1984, prices will weaken from increased soybean supplies. The futures market will probably trade under $7 during the last quarter of 1984, with cash prices dropping to about $6.25 for the harvest lows, says Ellis.

Dec. 16 was a "key reversal" day for soybeans, with beans trading during the day below the previous day's lows but then settling above the previous day's highs.

A 75 percent retracement is now likely from the last down move, says Ellis.

Prices will continue strong through the spring, says Ellis. Demand rationing and a tightening world supply of beans before the Brazil crop comes onto the world market will keep prices up.

Weather in South America and crop conditions in Brazil will be significant factors in the market during this time.

A price run-up at planting time will encourage farmers to plant more bean acres than last year, and U.S. acreage will likely end up at 70-71 million acres, says Ellis.

Technically the market will also be weak by the latter half of 1984, points out Ellis.

A 24-month price cycle low is expected to be reached in October 1984, plus a 39-month cycle low should be hit during the first quarter of 1985, meaning a continuation of low prices into 1985. Ellis says 1985 looks very flat with prices possibly remaining under $7.

Gulfport workshop to aid tax planners workshop on Monday, Jan. 16 and Tuesday, Jan. 17 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College in Gulfport.

The workshop is designed to provide existing and prospective small business owners with an increased awareness of tax responsibilities.

It will offer sessions on tax laws, incorporation, recent tax changes, self-employment considerations, tax-saving strategies and other useful tax tips.

Jack Purvis, small business consultant, and George McFarland, manager of the Economic Opportunity Research office of the Research and Development Center, will serve as seminar instructors.

Co-sponsors of the workshop are the Mississippi Small Business Development Center and the Small Business Administration.

The $20 registration fee includes instruction and seminar materials.

Interested persons should contact Marie Dean at the University of Southern Mississippi Gulfport Campus, Long Beach, 39560, telephone 864-3302.

VEGETABLE TIPS

Some tips on cooking vegetables in a microwave oven:

Potatoes and winter squash should be pierced to allow steam to vent during cooking. Salt should be dissolved in the cooking liquid before adding the vegetable, or season after cooking.

Frozen vegetables can be cooked in their paper carton, but you must rearrange or stir the contents halfway through the cooking time. You may prefer to place the frozen vegetable in a covered casserole to allow for easier stirring and uniform cooking.

Vegetables should be slightly firm when removed from the oven to allow for the additional cooking that will occur during standing time.

Canned vegetables should have most of the liquid removed before being heated in an appropriate container. Cover during heating. Allow two minutes of heating time per cup; stir or rotate halfway through cooking time; season after heating.

NOTE: Do not heat home-canned vegetables in the microwave oven. Home-canned vegetables should be boiled 10 minutes (20 minutes for corn and greens) before they are tasted. This is to rid them of any poison that may have formed in the jar if a spoilage organism was not killed during processing.

TIMBERLINE

By David Watts
Hancock County Forester

Much has been said in recent years about the importance of the value-added concept to the state's economy.

This concept simply means that each time a raw material goes through a manufacturing process, it becomes more valuable (value is added), and money is put into circulation, at the location where the value is added.

If the finished product is sold outside the state new money is brought into our economy.

Timber fits very well into this scheme. Let's see why. All timber products are derived from trees.

Trees are very heavy, and in their raw state have relatively low value; therefore, they cannot be shipped economically, as can many other raw materials such as petroleum products, so they are usually manufactured into a lower weight, higher value product near the place where they grew.

The finished product can then be economically shipped. Mississippi has an abundance of trees; that's why we see so many forest industries moving into the state.

Let's follow a tree in its journey from the forest to the marketplace, and see how value is added to it at each step.

We'll begin at the beginning with the seed.

Each year the Mississippi Forestry Commission buys pine cones. This year, we paid up to $5 a bushel.

After allowing for unsound seed, and some poor quality seedlings that will be culled, this $5 batch of pine cones will produce about 8,000 seedlings, with a retail value of $152. Value has been added.

The seeds were grown or "manufactured" into a more valuable product, and increased in value 3,000 percent.

Seedlings are planted at the rate of 800 per acre. It cost the landowner about 5 cents to buy a seedling and get it planted.

The end product of a loblolly pine plantation is sawlogs. These are large, high value trees, which require growing room.

We can only grow about 80 to 100 of these per acre to maturity, so you can see that we will have to remove most of our seedlings. This is usually done in two pulpwood thinnings, yielding about 20 cords per acre, or 200 cords for a ten-acre plantation.

The landowner will receive about $2,000 for these trees, which were bought and planted for $360.

Value has been added to these trees at the rate of 555 percent.

The woodcutter will sell this wood for about $7,000. Value has once again been added, this time at the rate of 350 percent.

The wood from these trees will be manufactured into about 100 tons of paper at a Mississippi papermill, which the mill will sell for $50,000. Value has once again been added to the wood, this time at the rate of 857 percent.

The remaining trees will be sold for sawlogs in two stages—a sawlog thinning and a final "harvest cut."

About 100,000 board feet will be cut, for which the landowner will receive $20,000.

Remember, these trees only cost the landowner about 5 cents each to plant, or a total of $50. Value has been added to these trees, to the tune of 40,000 percent.

The logger will sell these trees to a sawmill for $25,000. Once again, value has been added, at the rate of 20 percent.

The sawmill will manufacture the trees into lumber and by-products, such as bark and sawdust, much of which will be burned for fuel at the mill.

The lumber will be sold for about $30,000. Once again, value has been added, in this case at the rate of about 17 percent.

This lumber will be retailed for about $38,000, adding value at the rate of 21 percent.

So far, our bushel of pine cones has passed through at least four processes, with value being added at each step.

After about 30 years, our $5 worth of pine cones is now worth about $98,000. Often, at this point, the product leaves the state to be sold overseas or in other parts of this country, bringing much needed income into our nation's economy.

Of course, the story doesn't end here. What we view as finished products—stacks of lumber or huge rolls of paper—are only raw materials for someone else, which they will manufacture into other products, ranging from houses to magazines, with value being added at each step.

Some estimates say that the timber—stumps and all—turns over 30 to 40 times.

Fireplace Care

Most people who use fireplaces know that they waste a lot of heat. Even so, we all like to use and enjoy the fireplace.

Only about five percent of the heat generated by a fireplace goes into the house. The other 95 percent goes up the chimney. The warmest part of the standard fireplace is probably the glow itself.

A fireplace also draws cold air into a house under windows, from around doors and through cracks in floors. The result is that a fireplace can actually hinder rather than help a heating system.

There are some safety suggestions that will help you get the most out of your fireplace.

Keep your fire with kindling or materials made specifically for fireplaces. Flammable liquids are not recommended.

Don't use lots of paper to start a fire because some of the flaming pieces may be drawn up the chimney.

Keep the ashes about an inch deep on the hearth. The ashes act like insulation and will help the logs burn more efficiently.

Add new logs to the rear so they will reflect light and heat into the room. Use glass or screen doors in front of the fire to keep sparks from flying.

Glass doors double the efficiency of a fireplace and keep the heat from going up the chimney when the fireplace is not in use.

Don't leave children unattended in a room where a fire is going or even dying out. And make sure combustible materials are kept away from the fireplace.

All Hancock County farmers interested in pork production are invited to attend the 28th annual Mississippi Pork Producers Conference held at the Metro Ramada Inn in Jackson, Jan. 12-13.

A variety of topics such as respiratory problems in swine, boar selection and management, improving swine conception rate, ventilating farrowing and nursery facilities and the situation and outlook for pork production in 1984 will be covered.

Awards, displays, a state pork producers meeting and a report from the National Pork Producers Council are also on the agenda.

The conference will begin noon Thursday, Jan. 12 with registration. The awards program will conclude the conference Friday afternoon.

SPORTS

Golden Eagles back in action tonight

Southern Mississippi's Golden Eagles are back in action after the holidays in a road encounter tonight with Northeast Louisiana.

After that game USM will begin Metro Conference play with a Saturday home game against Florida State.

After 10 games this season the team is 6-4.

The team is led by 6-1 senior guard Chris Green who paces the team in scoring (18.0), steals (2.1), assists (3.7) and minutes played (34.7). The Memphis, Tenn. resident has scored in double figures in all 10 games this season and in 60 of his last 64 games.

Second behind Green in scoring is 6-4 junior forward James Williams of Magee with a 14.1 average. Williams also ranks second on the club in rebounding with 7.8 per game and placed the squad in field goal percentage with 67.3.

Senior forward Ken Suttles of Birmingham, Ala. currently ranks third on the team in scoring with 9.1 points per game and is the team's leading rebounder with 8.8 per contest.

During the first half of the 1983-84 campaign the Eagles have recorded victories over North Texas State, Tennessee State, Rollins College, Eastern Illinois, Mississippi State, Tennessee Tech. and Pittsburg State while their only losses have been to Illinois, Murray State and South Alabama.

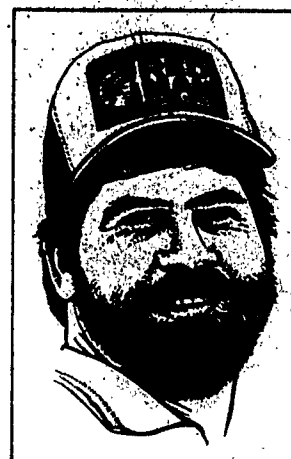

"Overall I think we have become a much improved team over the past few weeks, certainly a much better team than the one that started the season," USM head coach M. K. Turk commented.

"We have played very good defense and rebounded extremely well and that has been one of the keys to our early season success."

The game between USM and Northeast Louisiana will mark the 21st meeting between the two schools in a series that dates back to the 1938-39 campaign. The two schools met last season in Hattiesburg with the Eagles winning 75-65, but the Indians hold a 12-4 edge in the rivalry.

The USM-Florida State contest will be the ninth meeting between the two clubs, with FSU holding a 5-3 edge. In their two face-offs last season the Seminoles won both, 94-82 in Tallahassee and 71-65 in Hattiesburg.

Other home games on tap for the Eagles in January include battles with Southwestern Louisiana on Jan. 26 and Louisville on Jan. 30.

CASTIN' ABOUT

BAIT-AND-SWITCH TACTICS WILL BRING MORE BASS

While many people think of bass fishing mostly in terms of casting lures around shoreline targets, some of the best action to be had comes from offshore dropoffs.

Dropoffs, places where the water depth breaks quickly from one level to another, are often good spots to load up on bass when the banks aren't producing anything. And they don't have to be really deep. Drops with only four or five feet of water over them can be good if there is deep water, especially like you'd find in an old creek or river channel, along the edge of it.

Working crankbaits over dropoffs is one of the best tactics for tournament fishermen, simply because you can cover so much water in a limited period of time.

As you know, in events such as the Red Man Tournament Trail, we have to catch as many bass as we can in a short period of time.

When I locate a school of fish on a dropoff, I'll maybe catch five or six, and then they'll quit hitting the crankbait. Then, I'll toss in a worm or jig and continue fishing. Fishing slower with the second bait, I might be able to pick up six or eight other fish.

This often is the way a tournament fisherman gets his limit. Very seldom do you get into a situation where you can catch all the fish you need on the same bait used in the same manner.

You have to remember that 90 percent of the fish are clustered in only about 10 percent of the water.

Carmody takes post-grad $2,000 scholarship

Southern Mississippi football center Steve Carmody has been awarded a $2,000 post-graduate scholarship by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), as a reward for his outstanding accomplishments on the football field and in the classroom during his four years at USM.

Carmody thus becomes the second straight Eagle to win one of the scholarships with Golden Eagle center Bruce Thompson winning one of the scholarships last year.

For his four years at a student pursuing a major in accounting, the son of coach and Mrs. Jim Carmody has a 3.50 grade-point average. He has been in just about every honor society that exists at USM since attaining membership in the ODK Gold Key Society (he was selected the top male freshman student on campus) in his first year.

He has held memberships in Beta Gamma Sigma, business honor society; Beta Alpha Psi, accounting honor society; Gamma Beta Psi, leadership and scholarship honor society for top 10 percent of the student body; Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honor society; and Lambda Sigma, sophomore honor society.

Carmody has also been interviewed as a potential Rhodes Scholar.

He is a member of the Newman Club, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

As a four-year letterman in varsity football, he handled all long snaps on punts, field goals and extra points without a loss snap during the four seasons.

His athletic achievements include being chosen the outstanding offensive player for the Auburn game in 1982 and the outstanding special team player against Alabama in 1983. He was also named the outstanding player in 1983.

He consistently graded between 80 and 90 percent throughout his career as a student.

A second year all-Metro Conference selection in both 1982 and 1983 and a first-team NCAA District Three academic All-American, he has been invited to play in the 1984 East-West Shrine Game.

Soccer group board meeting set Tuesday

A meeting of the board of directors of Bay Area Youth Soccer, Inc. is scheduled for Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Main Street United Methodist Church.

BAYS is reorganizing its Under-14 Division and all boys born in 1970 and 1971 who did not play in the fall season are urged to register.

Also there are openings in all the other age divisions for those who have not previously registered.

Registration forms may be obtained from Gulf Coast, Waste or Waveland Small Animal Hospital.

The competitive season will start on Feb. 11 leading to the District Playdowns at the end of April.

It should be noted that due to the fact that SMSC has relocated its fields to the border of Long Beach and Pass Christian north of Interstate 10, Pass Christian players who have to yet registered will have to register with SMSC for the spring season unless transfer requests are approved prior to registration.

Discounts offered on state park cabins

A special seasonal discount for cabins and motel units at Mississippi state parks has been announced by the Bureau of Recreation and Parks.

On any Sunday through Thursday during the months of January through March, cabins and motel units will be discounted 20 percent off the published 1984 rates.

Cabins and motel units at the state parks are fully equipped, providing guests with bed and bath linen, and, in all cabins, there is a completely furnished kitchen with utensils and serving dishes.

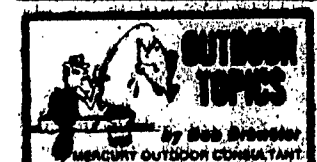

Many cabins have fireplace, and all cabins and motel units have central heat.

Some of the larger parks have food service; in other parks fast food outlets and restaurants are located nearby.

Aubrey Russell, director, Bureau of Recreation and Parks, said the Discount rates will be especially useful to traveling government employees with limited travel funds, as well as to the general public.

Reservations are not required but highly recommended. Reservations can be made by contacting the park whose accommodations are desired.

For a complete list of state parks with cabins and motel units, write Parks, Box 2026, Jackson, MS 39202, or call (601) 961-6814.

OUTDOOR TOPICS

by Bob Wheeler, MANQUITY OUTDOOR CONCEPTS

A FISHING PROVERB

"When it comes to catching catfish, he who waits the longest has the best luck." Anonymous, but true.

Patience is the game to play with catfish. They are slow eaters, preferring to take the food in their mouths and hold it as though savoring the taste, much as you would a delicious piece of steak. If you strike too soon, before the bait is swallowed, the catfish, whose mouth is tough and leathery inside, will respond by releasing the food. Unlike most other types of fishing, where it is desired to hook the fish immediately when a fish is felt, you must wait with catfish. Overcoming the tendency to strike fast is difficult, but it can be done. Motility Outboards Fishing experts have some tips that will help you control the urge to get the hook too soon.

Since most catfishing is done at night, it helps to hold the line between your fingers, so the bait is on the bottom of the lake or stream. By doing so, you can feel the slightest pull of a fish picking up the bait. Instead of straining to see the line twitch in the darkness, concentrate on detecting the fish rather than setting the hook in the panic.

Freeze problems emphasize dependence on water systems

Waking up to face a broken water pump or burst pipes has reminded many Mississippians of our dependence on free-flowing, safe drinking water.

After the century's record low temperatures Christmas weekend, many public water supplies faced critical situations. Thawing soils shifted, pipes burst or sprang hidden leaks; water storages decreased dramatically; and, in many instances, the water systems almost lost pressure.

Whenever a water system loses pressure, health officials presume it to be contaminated until it's tested and proved safe.

The pressure loss may create a vacuum which can pull contaminants into the system.

In emergencies and until a system can be flushed, sampled, and certified to contain safe drinking water, the "contaminated" water must be boiled vigorously for a full minute to kill any disease-causing bacteria present.

The flat taste can be improved by pouring the bottled water back and forth from one container to another, by allowing it to stand for a few hours, or by adding a pinch of salt for each quart of water boiled.

With a second cold front gripping Mississippi and in anticipation of an unusually cold winter, State Department of Health officials urge continued precautions to protect drinking water statewide.

"A pint of prevention is worth a gallon of cure," emphasized Joe Brown, chief of the agency's Bureau of Environmental Health.

Trickling or dripping faucets to prevent freezing of an individual's water pipes can be too costly to the water system as a whole, Brown said. Water storage in many areas is already down, as systems thaw, leaks will appear, further draining the stored supplies and straining the system.

Instead of dripping faucets, Brown recommends keeping the pipes warm or insulating the pipes and pump to prevent freezing. He praised efforts of citizens and community leaders, particularly in the City of Jackson, for following conservation guidelines early in the week which avoided the loss of pressure in public water supplies.

"Most Americans take water for granted," Brown said. "We use it lavishly each day for showering, drinking, cleaning, washing the car, and watering the lawn. When we reach for a faucet, we expect water to be there, waiting for us to use it. Only emergency situations remind us of how utterly dependent we are on water, and even after the paid, most of us forget."

"Beyond that," he said, "industry and business establishments use five times as much water each day as we do for these personal requirements. Therefore, we must combine our efforts to avoid wasteful use of water and to assure continued availability of safe water."

All inauguration events to be free and open to public

Bill Allain will be sworn in as the 59th governor of Mississippi in ceremonies beginning at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday on the South steps of the New Capitol in Jackson.

An Inaugural Celebration will be held at 8 p.m. that night in the Mississippi Coliseum featuring Lanny Wolfe Trio and jazz ensembles from Alcorn State University, Delta State University, Jackson State University, and Mississippi State University.

"We want an inauguration that is open to every Mississippian who wishes to attend," Gov. Elect Allain said. "That's why all of our activities will be free and open to the public. We are depending on our supporters throughout the state to help us spread the word that everyone is invited to this Inauguration and Celebration."

The 41st Army Band of the Mississippi Army National Guard under the direction of Warrant Officer George Murphy will begin the events for the noon swearing-in.

Elected officials and platform guests will assemble at 11:20 a.m. and a joint session of the Mississippi Legislature will convene at 11:30 a.m.

Bishop Joseph B. Brunini of the Jackson-Natchez Diocese will bring the invocation and blessing after which the national anthem will be sung by opera singer Lester Senter.

Neville Patterson, chief justice of the Mississippi Supreme Court, will administer the oath of office to Allain at noon. The Bible will be held by Walter L. Nixon Jr., chief justice of the United States District Court.

After the inaugural address by Allain, the benediction will be pronounced by Dr. David Matthews, president of the general Mississippi Baptist State Convention.

The ceremony will be interpreted for the deaf.

The New Capitol will be open for tours immediately following the ceremony. Phillip Yeagle's Combo will play in the rotunda.

Immediately following the noon swearing-in, a 21-gun salute will be fired by cannons on Mississippi Street.

The platform guests will be seated on the steps of the New Capitol, with a backdrop of flags that have flown over Mississippi including American, Spanish, French, English, Lone Star (Bonnie Blue), the first Mississippi State flag, Confederate, first American flag of 1817 and the present Mississippi State flag.

The celebration at 8 p.m. in the Mississippi Coliseum will include Travis Aycock, an entertainer from Morton, as emcee.

The Lanny Wolfe Trio of Jackson will begin the program with an audiovisual patriotic performance.

The floor of the coliseum will be open for dancing afterwards with music provided by the jazz groups from the four state schools.

The public is invited to attend both the Inauguration Ceremony at noon and the Inaugural Celebration at 8 p.m. in the Mississippi Coliseum.

Statement by Gov. Elect Bill Allain

"Our inauguration will differ from past years. The 1994 ceremonies will be an inauguration to fit the times.

"While we want the people of Mississippi to have every opportunity to join us in celebrating our victory, we also must keep in mind that these are austere economic times for our state.

"Every item in this inauguration was either donated or paid for with funds donated by our supporters, and for that I am very grateful. This is your inauguration as much as mine.

"We want an inauguration that is open to every Mississippian who wishes to attend. That's why all of our activities will be free and open to the public.

"With that goal in mind and in an effort to keep inauguration costs to a minimum, this year's inauguration will consist of the swearing-in ceremonies at noon and a free public celebration featuring Mississippi talent at 8 p.m. that evening.

"We will not have an inaugural parade, private inaugural ball, or inaugural luncheon.

"We are depending on our supporters throughout the State of Mississippi to help us spread the word that everyone is invited to this celebration."

Santa visits skating rink

By NAN P. EHRBRIGHT
Last Friday some 75 underprivileged children were entertained at an afternoon Christmas party sponsored by Schuffert Pontiac-Buick-GMC

Inc. and Twin Pines Roller Rink.

The party was held at the skating rink in Bay St. Louis. Following an hour or so of skating, the children ate cake and drank cokes.

Then each child visited with Santa Claus and received a gift.

Each child also received a bag of fruit.

LOOKING OVER THEIR GIFTS are several of the 75 or so youngsters who attended the recent Christmas party sponsored by Schuffert Pontiac and Twin Pines Roller Rink of Bay St. Louis. (Staff photo by Nan Patton Ehrbright)

"Thanks, Santa!"

Youngsters open their gifts.

"I've been a good girl."

"Thank you, Santa!"

Three lads investigate their toys carefully.

"Merry Christmas!"

A little bag from Santa Claus...

CRAZY MIXED-UP CREATURES

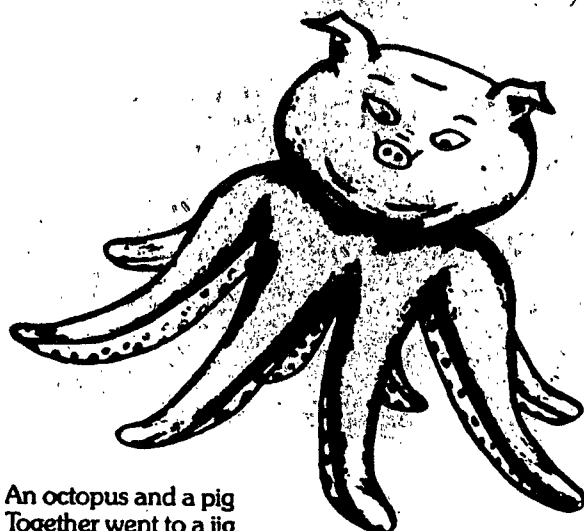

Some of Ranger Rick's fans have been sending in poems about some pretty strange creatures. Can you think of a great mixed up beastie? If so, draw its picture and write a limerick that tells what it is. (When you write your limerick, remember the last line must rhyme with the first two.) Send the picture and limerick to Betty Athey, Ranger Rick's Wild Wonders, 1412 16th St. NW, Washington, DC 20036.

A snake once looked under a pail,
And found there a very big snail.
He got into its shell,
And said, "It fits well,
But it's almost like being in jail."

Susan Price, Age 6
Farrell, VA

There once was a fat cat named Matt
Who'd much rather have been a fat bat.
So he hung upside down
And began to frown
And now is a frowning cat-bat!

Jennifer Gager, Age 5
Washington, DC

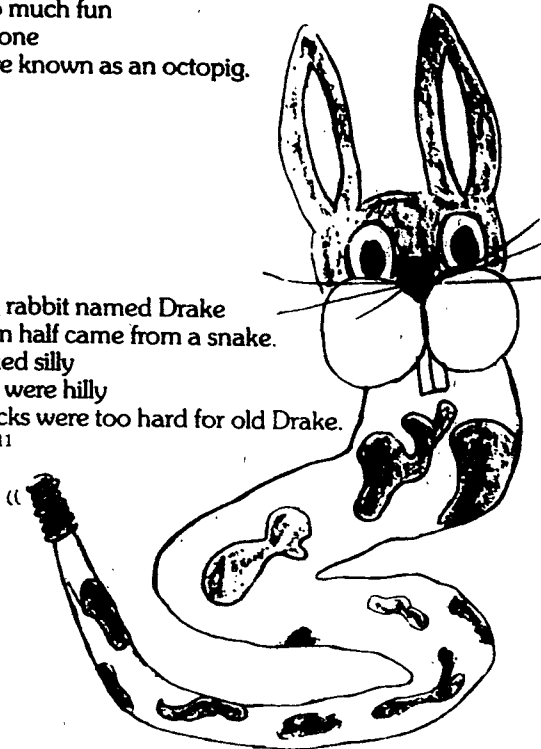

An octopus and a pig
Together went to a jig.
They had so much fun
Together as one
Now they are known as an octopig.

Anita Kohler
Johnstown, PA

I saw a young rabbit named Drake
Whose bottom half came from a snake.
He really looked silly
On roads that were hilly
'Cause the rocks were too hard for old Drake.

PURRING PACHYDERMS?

For many years people have heard "tummy rumblings" from the insides of elephants. Everyone thought the rumblings must be the sounds of gas and food moving. But there was one problem with this idea — the elephants could stop these rumblings whenever they wanted to.

Scientists now know the sounds have nothing to do with digestion. Instead, they say, the elephants are purring somewhat like cats!

Purring seems to be a kind of protection. Elephants purr when they are out of sight of each other.

RANGER RICK'S WAY-OUT WONDERS by Gerry Bishop

Then if one of them spots danger, it stops purring. This alerts the others. When the elephant purrs again, it's signaling "all clear."

NOW THAT'S A RETRIEVER

Deep in the Amazon jungle lives one of the strangest (and rarest) dogs in the world — the bush dog. Like other wild dogs, it hunts in packs at night, chasing its prey over land. But this dog's favorite prey are large rodents called pacas, which often dive underwater to escape. This doesn't stop the bush dog, though. It just dives in and swims underwater after them!

Brief

STUDENTS' WORKS

Three University of Mississippi composition students in the Department of Music will have their original works performed in concert at 8 p.m., Jan. 27 in Meek Hall auditorium.

"During the fall, the composition students focused their creative energies on smaller instrumental and vocal forms," said Gene Saucier, UM professor of music and the teacher of the students. "The results have been solos, duets and quartets with some compositions drawing upon pop-commercial styles of writing."

Student composers debuting their works include Lindya Mayfield of Kosciusko.

USM officials investigate 'creative financing'

University of Southern Mississippi officials are currently investigating ways of "creative financing" to secure funds for projects which would not be funded by the state legislature.

According to Dr. Tom Estes, vice president for business and finance at USM, the university needs additional computer and scientific equipment, dormitory renovations and parking garages to cope with a growing enrollment.

At present, universities are prohibited by law from borrowing money from conventional financial institutions.

But Estes said that formation of a corporation friendly to the university system could provide an alternative to that situation.

At a recent meeting at USM of educational administrators and financial officers representing national lending institutions, various ways of "creative financing" were discussed.

"We discussed long term floating rate tax exempt demand notes, where the rate comes in somewhere in the neighborhood of 50 to 55 percent of prime," Estes said, "and such things as advanced refunding bonds, interest rate swaps, tax benefits sale and lease backs, tax exempt leasing and municipal bond futures."

One possibility outlined by Estes was the "friendly" corporation.

A corporation could be formed and would be able to borrow money at favorable tax exempt rates, he said. The corporation would purchase equipment and lease it to universities under the condition that when the equipment is paid for, title would revert to the universities.

Estes said that certificates of participation were also discussed during the meeting.

He said a company could finance a university project and then sell certificates of participation to investors. Investors would get their money back along with tax exempt interest income and the university would get its money at favorable interest rates.

As a result of the USM meeting, a six-member task force is planned to investigate ways to use the tax exempt status of the universities in financing equipment, renovations and other needed items.

Estes said the task force would be made up of himself, a banker, a bond lawyer and representatives from the USM Board of Trustees, the State Treasury Department and the Attorney General-elect's office.

Face it. We could all use a little concrete advice now and then.

Cooperation urged in school reform

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was the result of a project funded by the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and not those of either organization.

By Darla Ferris Miller
The University of Mississippi
Education in Mississippi today is perched on the edge of an interesting cliff. It could soar or plummet.

House Bill 4, Governor William Winter's ambitious education package, has opened the door to a five-year plan for educational renovation. Educators, legislators, parents and children in Mississippi will be watching anxiously as the "heavy machinery" rolls in to uproot old ways.

Years may pass before we know the outcome of this adventurous undertaking, but whatever the results, the process will involve growing pains, mistakes, resistance and—some hope—some real progress.

The education package, which looks sort of like a New York phone book, says a lot about a lot of things, but specifically it tells schools to decide precisely what they intend to teach and then to explain exactly how they can show that it is being taught successfully.

It also outlines plans to assure the competence of teachers and administrators and to provide them the resources they need to upgrade the schools.

Although the goals of House Bill 4 are lofty, its perspective is necessarily from one point of view and, as old Mississippi cotton farmers often say, "There's more'n one way to skin a cat!"

It will be very interesting to see how the decidedly heterogeneous citizenry of this state will put such a plan into action.

Every man, woman and child in the state has a vested interest in the school system, but it would be hard to find any two people who really agree on what schools are supposed to be or do.

Parents see education as a child's ticket to the future. They also see the school as an extension of the family in which children absorb values and moral attitudes, whether anyone intends it or not. Parents become explosively emotional if they believe their child is spending the bulk of his waking hours in an inadequate or inappropriate learning environment.

The business community sees education as an important consideration for luring new industry to the state. Industry today requires a well-educated work force that can be trained for high technology. It also requires living conditions that are attractive to transferred employees. (Business executives are often concerned parents, too.)

In addition, legislators frequently see schools as a tool for societal change.

When chances are needed, children in public schools are a captive audience and, therefore, an easy target. If we have too many highway deaths, offer drivers' education.

If we have too many teenage pregnancies or too much drug and alcohol abuse, require schools to teach sex education and substance abuse courses.

Teachers and administrators soon find themselves being pulled in every direction.

In the last decade, education seems to have fallen prey to the same fate as the donkey in an old fable. As an elderly man and a little boy walked their donkey to market, they were given so much advice about who should walk and who should ride that they finally tried to carry the donkey. Sadly, they stumbled on a bridge and the poor donkey drowned.

Our school system has not drowned yet, but administrators everywhere are marching donkeytime trying to please onlookers.

If nothing else, House Bill 4 should bring about a statewide sign of relief. Educators, parents and legislators will now be forced to settle down to the grim reality of making decisions and commitments.

Education cannot be all things to all people. Our education package may not be the only strategy or the perfect solution, but it is a start toward a better day for education in Mississippi.

With cooperation and the willingness to compromise,

Mississippians can tackle the tremendous problems that are now choking our schools.

The mandates from House Bill 4 can cause education in Mississippi to sprout wings and fly, or they can be just one more distraction for educators to deal with and one more political "hot potato" for factions to debate.

Good arguments can be made for various prescriptions for our educational ailments. However, we may lose the patient if we do not pool our energies into making the plan we have work.

Another dubious distinction: Mississippi ranks third nationally in obsolete and deficient bridges

Two thirds of all the bridges connecting Mississippi's road system are either functionally obsolete or structurally deficient, according to a recent report from the Southern Rural Development Center here.

The Magnolia State ranks third nationally and second regionally in bridge problems behind North Carolina. Louisiana is third in the region.

In early December the Mississippi Highway Department announced a $555 million price tag for road and bridge improvements it would seek funding for as part of a three-year construction plan.

The plan will be submitted to the 1984 Mississippi legislature and is based on using 75 percent federal funding and 25 percent state funding. The agency lists 292 possible projects and many of those will be bridges, including $21 million for a new bridge across the Mississippi River at Natchez.

With more total roadway mileage than any other region of the country, the South faces the problem of financing repairs for nearly 102,000 of the region's 213,000 bridges spanning 20 feet or more.

"The South is slightly worse off than the rest of the nation in the total percentage of deficient or obsolete bridges," said Pamela J. Cosby, a research associate and author of the recent study of rural roads and bridges in the South.

"Many bridges have reached or will shortly reach the end of their life expectancy," she said, emphasizing that more than 37 percent of the bridges in the nation were built before 1940.

Cosby summarized her findings in a 64-page report published by the Southern Rural Development Center, one of our regional centers for the nation. The Southern center is located at Mississippi State University.

Six of the 13 Southern states report higher percentages of deficient bridges than the 45 percent reported for the na-

Winter Maintenance

In most areas of the country, winter is NOT a fun time to work on a car. Often the only time an individual looks under the hood of their car is to find out what's gone wrong.

Preventive maintenance is the best and, in most cases, the cheapest kind. Therefore, the CARQUEST Corporation offers a few hints for under the hood winter maintenance.

Pick a nice, sunshine-filled day and go over the items we've looked at before, maybe six months ago.

Check hoses in the cooling and heating system to see if the clamps are holding. See any bulges or cracks in the hoses? With the engine cool, check the fluid level in the radiator.

Take the anti-freeze tester you bought last fall and check to see that the anti-freeze is still going to protect your engine.

While thinking about fluids, check the levels and CONDITIONS of the oil, automatic transmission (if that's what you have) and brake master cylinder. When was your last oil and filter change?

Also check the windshield washer bottle and battery.

Check belts for wear and, while doing so, the engine to detect leaks. Push and pull on items such as air cleaner, air conditioner compressor and power steering pump to make sure they are bolted down correctly.

Now check the outside of the car... wiper blades, tires and all the lights. Check the spare. Did you, like you promised yourself, put an "emergency kit" in the trunk?

One last check. The next time you go to the grocery store, before going inside, open the hood and look over the cooling system for leaks that may only show up when the system is under pressure.

By undertaking these preliminary precautions, you may be saving yourself some costly repairs or chilly nights on the side of the road.
